A New Back for an Old One—How it is Done in Maine.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the joints are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one.

Mrs. E. G. Carver, 98 Oak St., Lewiston, Me., says:—"For about two weeks last January I had such an acute attack of pain in the back that when stooping or lifting I was in misery. Reading about Doane's Kidney Pills I got a box at a drug store. They helped me from the first and I continued taking them until the pain and lameness disappeared. I am now free from these troubles, and give all the credit to Doane's Kidney Pills.

The Lone Pine.

Alone you stand, serene and calm, With brave undaunted air; Immured in sun and storm, I wonder if you care.

Friends and companions all are gone, The axe has laid them low, And left you standing there forlorn, I wonder if you know.

You lift your head serene and fair, And read a happy land, For all the voyagers of the air A hostelry you stand.

Companions that around you grew, Are gone we know not where, I wonder if it troubles you, I wonder if you care.

Were I in your place old Lone Pine, Secret of a love, I'd set up such an awful whine, They'd hear me up above.

Only a Baby.

Only a little baby, With hair like fine spun gold, And eyes like sky in summer, But all, how could they hold!

They had stood by the cradle and rocked it, All quiet and sleek and trim, They had watched the sweet smiles linger, Hoped such she would ever keep.

How they planned for the babe in the cradle, Now the plans must be laid away, Just like the dresses and stockings, For the babe is no more.

Now, they stood by the little cradle, For the babe is no more, Her tiny hands were clasped, And woe the press of each finger!

And woe the soft breath was departing, Never to rise on this earth again; While tears from each eye were falling, And death's angel came in.

Our lives they said must be gentle, Would we strive to meet her there In the "house of many mansions," In the city eternal and fair?

It was only a little baby, Only a piece of clay, It looked like a piece of waxwork there, So still in its cradle it lay.

They had noted its merry prattle, Though it could not utter a word, And woe the little body was cold, But there are a thousand memories to be had.

Only a little baby, Only a mother's heart dead, While the gold from the babe's head, Only a few sweet flowers, Only an empty cradle, Is that all for the babe we called ours?

Nay, nay, though the flower has faded, We dwell on its perfume still, And we sigh, low sweet, while it lasted, So I think we always will.

And woe the little body was cold, But there are a thousand memories to be had, To our babe in heaven above, DADA HARLOWE.

Prize Numerical Enigma.

The answer contains 47 letters and is a good old adage.

1, 20, 35, 10, is to kill. 7, 17, 31, 31, is silent. 20, 2, 4, 1, is most good. 20, 2, 4, 1, is a whip.

21, 9, 35, 36, is a small distance. 21, 9, 35, 36, is to stop. 23, 18, 43, is a short letter. 32, 2, 24, 34, is to hope.

34, 12, 34, is to disappoint. 40, 43, 23, 3, is a part of the leg. 44, 45, 28, 29, is a maiden. 41, 12, 37, 28, is a burden.

Now do not set down girl, lass or miss for maiden, nor stay for to stop, nor yard or road for a short distance. The puzzle consists of fourteen words which I am quite sure you will be able to find.

No prizes are offered for the answer and no stamps are called for but the name of each solver sending the correct answer will be printed. The answer to the enigma printed in the ADVERTISER of May 1st is: "It is a good thing to learn caution by the misfortunes of others." The correct solution was sent by:

Edna McKee, West Bethel, Florence R. Garner, Kezar Falls, Elsie Holman, South Paris, E. E. Holmes, Norway, 2-31 Umbagog, Upton, Mrs. F. W. Ham, West Medford, Mass.

Answers should always be sent within two weeks from the date of the papers in which they appear, and addressed to P. O. box 55. PUZZLER.

Sebastian Rale was one of the most famous and successful of all Jesuit missionaries sent to ancient Acadia by Paul de La Roche, who was at the head of the Society of Jesus in his great efforts to convert the Indians of the New World. He was at the head of the Kennebec mission, located at what is now the town of Norridgewood, in the State of Maine, and upon territory that was claimed after the treaty of Utrecht by both the English and French Governments. In 1724 Rale and the most of his dusky followers were killed by the English colonists from Massachusetts, and his church and chapels and the Indian village were destroyed by fire. Sebastian Rale was one of the most remarkable men and strongest characters that appear in the early history of New England. The writer is Hon. John F. Sprague, lawyer, farmer and student of Monson. Mr. Sprague has written a very interesting account of this Maine tragedy. He has spent much time in looking up his authorities and has collected his account from both sides of the controversy.

Hatch's father came to this town 55 years ago and for that length of time a certain piece of grass near the residence has been cut and mowed out of ten times the cutting of it has produced rain. Three Fires.

Saturday night a fire was discovered in a heap of rubbish near C. E. Foss's store at the falls. The fire was put out without calling the fire department and no particular damage was done.

Sunday, at 6:15 p. m., the alarm was rung in from Box 46. The Joseph K. Edwards buildings on Fore street were discovered burning by Eugene Stevens, who was driving by. The buildings were occupied by H. A. Stimpson and family but they have been away for about two months.

The fire companies were on the scene as soon as distance and difficulties would permit. It was a distance of some 1,500 feet from the nearest hydrant. The hook and ladder company started but the fire was too far gone.

Nearly all the furniture down stairs was saved and most of the farming tools. Mr. Edwards had $1000 insurance on the buildings and $500 on furniture, and Mr. Stimpson had $500 on furniture.

It is supposed that the fire was started by rats or mice getting at matches. The third fire was at George Locke's on Water street. The alarm was rung in shortly after ten o'clock Sunday night. A lamp had exploded and the fire which started was fought by the Locke family and neighbors some minutes before ringing the alarm. The fire was in the ell and was soon extinguished after the arrival of the fire companies. Damage estimated about $50.

The days are now growing shorter. Mrs. Mae Ranger is working in Portland.

Mrs. Dorcas A. Sanborn and granddaughter, Lena Osgood, go to Meredith, N. H., this week for the summer.

The Maine Apple.

EDITOR NORWAY (Oxford Co.) ADVERTISER:—My attention has been called to an article in your issue of June 12, concerning Maine apples and Maine orchardists, published originally in Turf, Farm and Home. From reading this article one might be led to suppose that Maine produced no decent apples, no honest men. The fact is the farmers in this part of the State do not pack their own apples.

The wholesale dealers employ agents to go about among the farmers and buy their apples. These agents employ packers to go about from place to place sort them and pack them and all the farmer has to do about it is to haul them to the station and load them into the car.

Not until last fall and winter did Maine apples have a bad reputation. A few farmers shipped their own apples. All the Baldwin were small in size last year.

More than two thirds of the apples froze and they made the mistake of mixing them with the ones that did not freeze and spoiled the looks of the whole lot. Frozen apples do not ship well, they look bad when they get there. However these same poor apples that netted the farmers but 60c to $1.00 per barrel, many of them were sold out by the retail dealers at 80c a peck in the cities and villages in Mass. and N. Y. and other places. W. W. MAXIM.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.
